ASBESTOS ON NAVY SHIPS

Navy ships contained tons of asbestos. Those serving on a ship was most likely exposed to asbestos at some point. This is why Navy veterans make up the highest percentage of mesothelioma patients compared to other branches of the military.

HOW ASBESTOS WAS USED ON NAVY SHIPS

Over 30% of mesothelioma patients are veterans. Of those veterans, those who served in the Navy and the Coast Guard are at the highest risk of developing mesothelioma because they often served on ships or in shipyards.

Rates on Navy ships with the highest risk of asbestos exposure included:

- Boilerman
- Machinist Mates
- Pipefitters
- Hull Technicians

Shipyards workers had to build and tear down ships. This released large amounts of asbestos into the air. Mechanics that served on ships were tasked with fixing ship components such as piping, pumps and valves. This often put them in direct contact with asbestos insulation and parts. It wasn't until the late-1970s that the U.S. military recognized the health risks associated with asbestos exposure.

Since then, the military has removed asbestos from the majority of its infrastructure, though it was impractical to remove all of it. Asbestos still remains in some older ships and buildings. Fortunately, asbestos is not a health risk if it is not disturbed.

Mesothelioma symptoms first appear 15 to 45 years after exposure to asbestos. Veterans in the Navy and Coast Guard that worked in ships in World War II and the Vietnam and Korean Wars are at the highest risk for developing the disease. The majority of mesothelioma cases are from extended exposure to asbestos. But even the VA admits that brief and indirect asbestos exposure could lead to mesothelioma.

DID YOU KNOW

The military used asbestos in virtually all its infrastructure until the late-1970s. Navy ships had asbestos in pipe lagging to insulate pipes, electrical wiring and even in flooring tiles. In places with poor ventilation, such as boiler rooms and engine rooms, asbestos could circulate in the air for hours.

NAVY AND COAST GUARD VETERANS

Asbestos was used by all branches of the military in some capacity as a heat-resistant and fireproofing material.

However, Navy and Coast Guard veterans have the highest risk of developing mesothelioma. Asbestos in ships and shipyard environments could be found around every corner. Inside of ships, sailors are in tight spaces, and being in enclosed areas like boiler rooms and engine rooms for weeks or months at a time increase the risk of breathing in more asbestos fibers.

When mechanics worked on ship components, they would routinely have to deal with asbestos used to insulate those components. They also dealt with asbestos materials such as gaskets or valve packing that would release asbestos fibers into the air. When the asbestos was released into the air, it would remain airborne for hours.

In shipyards, the building, overhauling and decommissioning of ships released massive amounts of asbestos into the air where hundreds of people worked.

DID YOU KNOW

There is no safe level of asbestos exposure. Even people with brief exposure can develop mesothelioma. But according to the National Cancer Institute, “it is clear that the health risks from asbestos exposure increase with heavier exposure and longer exposure time.” So breathing in larger amounts of asbestos in a confined space like an engine room increases your cancer risk.

WHERE ASBESTOS COULD BE FOUND ON SHIPS

In ships, asbestos was used in hundreds of different capacities. Because the material was cheap and very effective at fireproofing ship components, it became quite common. Asbestos could be found in engine rooms, boiler rooms, navigation rooms, mess halls and sleeping quarters.

Here are some of the components inside those rooms which contained asbestos:

- Piping
- Insulation
- Grinders
- Gaskets
- Packing
- Paneling
- Caulk
- Tubing
- Adhesives
- Cables
- Valves
- Bedding compounds
- Thermal materials
- Floor Tiles

Asbestos was released into the air whenever these components were installed, repaired or removed. In ships, that usually meant asbestos being released into a tightly enclosed area. As these components aged, their exteriors wore down. It became harder to avoid disturbing the asbestos and easier to release the dangerous fibers into the air.

SHIPS WHERE ASBESTOS COULD BE FOUND

Asbestos was found on virtually all of the ships built by the Navy and Coast Guard and used between World War II and the late-1970s. From submarines to aircraft carriers, sailors aboard faced the risk of asbestos exposure.

You can learn more about exposure while aboard these ships from our Veterans Guide or you can find out where asbestos was aboard these specific types of ships:

- Aircraft Carriers
- Amphibious Ships
- Auxiliary Ships
- Battleships
- Cruisers
- Cutters
- Destroyers
- Destroyer Escorts
- Escort Carriers
- Frigates
- Merchant Marine Ships
- Minesweepers
- Patrol Boats
- Submarines

When the military learned the risks of asbestos in the late-1970s, there was a massive effort to remove asbestos from ships. This took years to accomplish and some veterans may have been exposed to asbestos as late as the early-1990s. Most ships today use non-hazardous alternative materials in place of asbestos.

SHIPYARD WORKERS AND ASBESTOS EXPOSURE

Shipyard workers were also at risk. Every part of the shipyard facility used asbestos products. That included the dockyard buildings and housing built for workers and their families. Asbestos was in offices and machine shops as well as cafeterias and washrooms. There was no safe place where shipyard workers could escape asbestos exposure.

BENEFITS FOR NAVY VETERANS

Navy veterans with mesothelioma can access financial compensation and free treatment. The Department of Veterans Affairs offers many kinds of financial benefits from disability compensation to caregiver compensation. The VA also has world-class mesothelioma surgeons on the east and west coast. These specialists treat veterans from all over the country. Most veterans seeing these doctors have little to no treatment or travel costs. It's all paid for by the VA.

Here are some ways a VA claim can help you:

- Receive monthly payments that make up for lost wages or medical costs
- Get treatment from one of the top mesothelioma doctors in the world
- Save money for your family's future

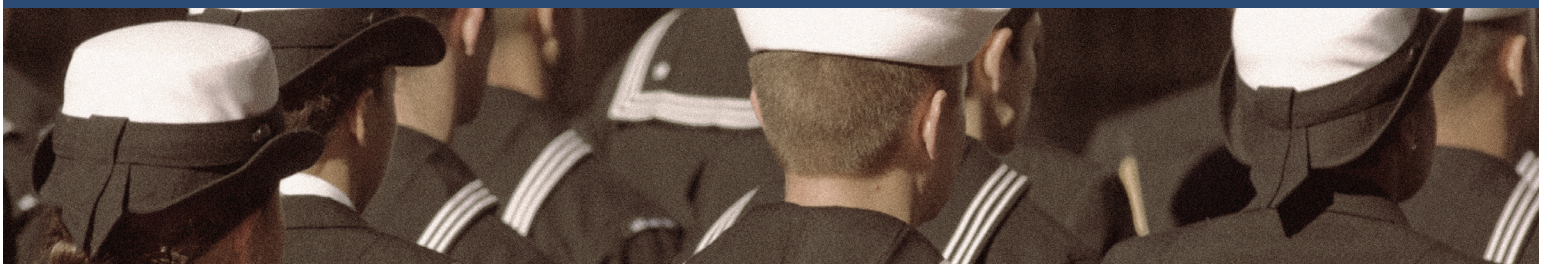

Navy veterans with mesothelioma often get 100% of the benefits offered by the VA. Those who worked on Navy ships were definitely exposed to asbestos, and most veterans can prove it. Our VA-accredited claims agents are here to help you file your claim. They can help you create and expedite your VA claim so you get benefits faster. Get connected to our service representatives now.

In addition to the benefits earned by U.S. Veterans through their service, Veterans have a right to hold responsible the companies that produced and sold asbestos-containing materials to the military. Filing an asbestos legal claim does not impact VA benefits.

Veterans or immediate family members can also file a separate mesothelioma lawsuit directly against the manufacturers of asbestos-containing products – not the U.S. government. These manufacturers, in some cases, supplied these deadly products to the military. Filing an asbestos legal claim does not impact VA benefits and often these rights can be enforced without ever having to go to court.

DID YOU KNOW

42% of all Mesothelioma Veterans Center mesothelioma cases are U.S. Veterans representing nearly every state in the U.S. We represent asbestos victims from all branches of the military and we have helped people in all 50 states get the legal support they need.

NAVY SHIPS AND SHIPYARDS CONTAINING ASBESTOS

The following ships and shipyards are known to have contained Asbestos products. If you served on these ships or worked in these shipyards and have been diagnosed with mesothelioma, contact our Veterans Support Team today at (855) 274-1121. We'll help you file for the proper VA Benefits and other financial support options.

About the Mesothelioma Veterans Center

OUR MISSION

No one gets left behind. To that end, we strive to provide veterans diagnosed with asbestos illnesses the best information, advice and assistance we possibly can. From filing for VA Disability Compensation to helping veterans find the best medical treatment, we never stop fighting.

OUR VISION

Because veterans comprise the single largest group of Americans diagnosed with mesothelioma and asbestos lung cancers each year, they are the most affected, yet their needs are the most underserved. There are many benefits available to veterans, which many overlook. We envision a day when we are able to ensure that every veteran diagnosed with mesothelioma or asbestos lung cancer is able to get the best medical treatment available and that they receive any and all VA benefits for which they are eligible.

OUR VALUES

HONOR, INTEGRITY AND PRECISION

Honor: We live our lives by the same code of conduct with which we conducted ourselves as fighting men and women of the Armed Forces. We shall never do anything that would bring dishonor to our organization, the military or ourselves. We belong to one large fraternity made up of our “Brothers in Arms”. As we did in the military, we will look out for each other so that our veterans can always count on us to have their back.

Integrity: We will be truthful always. We will be frank with every veteran or his or her family member. We will provide advice that is founded on VA law and publication. We never speculate. We speak only of what we know to be true. We will never be afraid to say “I don’t know, but I will go look it up for you”.

Precision: Attention to detail is the cornerstone of our approach to each VA claim. Every asbestos-related claim is different. Therefore, we will ensure that we provide the veteran with the information and guidance that they need to ensure that their claim is complete, correct, and compelling. If the veteran does not feel that we made the entire process easy to understand and stress-free to file, we haven’t done our job.
